BLUE SUN PHENOMENON IN MELBOURNE

London, Yesterday. The "Evening Standard" contains a report of a strange phenomenon observed in Melbourne, in consequence of a severe dustatorm which swept across the city on Good Friday and provided the residents with the sight of a blue sun .- Trans-

Garden City Near Castle Peak

The "Sunday Herald" learns that a big development scheme is now well under way at Ping Shan in the New Territories, which, when completed, will convert a large area, hitherto unoccupied, into a garden city on the lines of Kowloon Tong.

It is understood that a Chinese syndicate has purchased a large tract of ground, which has ready been levelled and marked off into building plots. Communication with the Castle Peak Road has been made by means of a first class concreto road which will be adequate to take the heaviest motor traffic.

THE ANGLO-ITALIAN AGREE-MENT, WHICH IS TO BE SIGNED IN ROME THIS EVENING, REACHED LONDON BY THIS MORNING. THE TEXT WILL BE PUBLISHED IN THE ITALIAN CAPITAL AT 6 P.M.

For the first time in years the newspapers of all parties in Britain are unanimous that the outlook in foreign affairs to-day is brighter than at any period for a long time past.

This optimism leads the "Daily Mail" to declare that the Rome negotiations are really the start of talks for conclusion of a new Western Pact.

Attempt On Stalin's Life: New Version

London, Yesterday. Newspaper readers to-day were entertained with another report of an alleged attempt on the life of Stalin. The report, which emanates from Prague, says that the atloys and arranged the pro- tempt was made in the Kremlin. Would-be assassin, it is said, was a former G.P.U. officer who approached the Soviet Dictator and whipped out a revolver. At this point the story differs from similar reports in the past. The revolver did not miss fire. What happened was that Stalin's personal bodyguard stepped in front of his master and knocked the weapon out of the officer's hand.

Rounding out the story nicely were some mysterious forged documents, which were found on the ex-G.P.U. officer's person.-Trans-Ocean.

WRECKS SHEKLUNG BRIDGE

Canton, Yesterday. After trying in vain for months to demolish, the Shek Lung Bridge, on the Kowloon-Canton Railway, Japanese bombers yesterday secured their first direct hit on this vital structure.

The Japanese success followed heavy bombing of the railway in the vicinity of Shek Lung the previous day, which destroyed a large portion of the track and delayed traffic for five hours.

Now, following yesterday's direct hit on the bridge, traffic between Kowloon and Canton has been suspended for several days at least.

Yesterday's bombing resulted in severe damage to one of the vital spans of the bridge, the entire structure having been moved six inches out of position by the detonation.

Desperate efforts are being made by repair ganga to restore the damage, but it is feared that it will not be possible to use the bridge for several days.

CANTON ANXIETY

Much anxiety has been caused in Canton, as it is thought that the Japanese raiders, having hit the bridge itself, will now concentrate on totally destroying it.

Construction of a new bridge to replace the present large steel structure, would . mean serious interference with what is aptly

The Japanese troops in the town, estimated at 10,000 strong, are now entirely surrounded, and it is claimed that their retreat has been cut off.

The Japanese are fighting back hard against the Chinese, it is learned, and yesterday launched two violent counter-offensives, from within the town. Both attacks, however, were repulsed.

JAPANESE CLAIM SUCCESS

Tokyo, Yesterday. The War Office, which preserves a significant silence on the progress of events in South Shantung, issued a communique today claiming that a Chinese division had been badly cut up in fighting in North Honan; north of the Yellow River.

There are indications that large reinforcements are likely to be sent to China in the near future to meet what is described as "the present difficult situation."

Rumours of acute Cabinet dissension continue to spread in Tokyo, in spite of official denials. Our Own Correspondent.

BOLEROS Are Back Again

THE bolero has come back with a flourish of trumpets. A good thing, too, for it is an obliging mode, leaving ample scope for ringing the changes in both day and evening clothes, and even opening the door to the rejuvenation of last year's frocks.

While in Paris our artist sketched two excellent examples of this style. The first, which you will see above, was from. Chanel's spring collection, and shows a white lace bolero coat over a plain black frock.

The second example (below) is from Jean Desses, and gives an idea of the effect of a bolero in white pique latticed with black afternoon frock.

Third sketch is from Mainbother, and gives you something new in evening silhouettes, a white moire coat of which the very modish flare emphasises the slimness of the black skirt.

In London last week Victor Stiebel produced what was admitted to be one of the best displays he has achieved.

His evening frocks draped on Grecian lines are among the best things I have seen in the dress world. They are artistic without being "arty."

An embroidered floral motif on the lapel of one dark suit, another with a few rows of simple darning stitch in white bordering revers, sleeves and hem of skirt, and yet another carried out with white darning stitch in vertical rows, giving effect of pin-striped material and employed for skirt only or for coat only—these provide a few examples of what can be achieved in this way.

Here are a few good rules to observe. Always buy your embroidery materials, whether wool, cotton or silk, from wellestablished makers, making sure that they are fast to sun and

Use the same method if you are doing an all-over powdering of spots or sprigs on a garment, spacing out and fixing your dots before beginning the embroidery.

By this method you will need no transfer patterns, and you can make your own designs, adding considerably to the original effect of your handwork. These are just a few rules to guide you. All the examples sketched on this page are carried out in simple stitches, easily followed

Same skirt, minus the braces, could be worn with the smart little jumper which forms the final example, providing a smart semi-evening toilette.

Jersey fabric would be a good medium, and here are some suggested colour combinationsnavy, with rings embroidered in coral and beige, white and green, or two shades of yellow.

Or, if you preferred, you could use mat satin in white or black with the rings embroidered in gold and grey silk.

TATHEN you are unpicking, do VV it in the French style, rather than in the usual tedious mann r of unpicking stitch by stitch. London. Yesterday.

It is claimed here that the capture of Vinaroz and a long section of the Mediterranean coast, splitting the Republican forces into two, will prove to be the decisive factor in the Spanish civil war.

The sweep through to the coast achieves for General Franco the attainment of the primary objective of the heavy offensive on the Aragon front which opened on March 5.

According to the latest despatches from the front, immediately following the capture of Vonaroz and the occupation of Beccarlo, some six miles to the south, the insurgent command rushed up strong detachments of troops in order to consolidate its hold upon the important road onnecting up Barcelona and Valencia.

THIS little piece of shop flitted through our mind when the young lady whose photograph you've just been admiring, asked our advice on how to fill in a long, buff coloured form. The document had been sont to her by a newspaper and related to her impending marriage. After enquiring the names of the parties and their respective parents, the questionnaire asked for particulars of the best man, the bridesmaids, the matron of honour, the officiating chaplain, the bride's wedding gown, her going away dress, the colour and composition of her bouquet, etc., etc.-all with a little blank space opposite each question, as if the most important event in a woman's life could be reduced to the norm of an income tax schedule.

HN fact, the inquisition had been framed with the same exhaustive stupidity, and just as the wispy little men with ferrety eyes and tight lips don't leave you room to explain that John's been sick all summer and the doctor's bills are driving you mad, so there was no space for the all important details of how the young lady had arrived at the altar stage, and not the least curiosity concerning her reactions on reaching that important place. A LL of which takes us back to the Carrison Town of Kiev on a May morning in the year 1908. In those days, the town was a pleasant place, the streets clean, well paved, the kerbs adorned with rows of young chestnut trees. On this particular morning. Kiev was basking in the sunlight. The windows of the houses stood wide open, pillows and blankets hung over the sills for an airing, and every now and then busy housewives could be heard jurging their maids to greater action. The freshly swilled cobbled roadway in the glistened like blue sapphires and dazzled the eyes of Lieutenant Grigor Tereschenko, Zaamoursky

Infantry Regiment, as he hurried out of the barrack gates.

THE Lieutenant wore an all fitting dark blue tunic, and his silver shoulder straps embossed in gold with the number of his regiment, were tarnished and threadbare; a fact that for once failed to depress him. As he passed by the market hall that housed the Jew shops, a troop of Cossacks turned their heads with uplifted chins. The sotnia's horses were splendidly matched bays, all carefully groomed, and the fine looking, bronzed riders bestrods them like young Hercules.. He acknowledged the salute and from wake. The eve of Tannenburg found them a few miles behind the lines, living in a German house in the occupied town of Margrabowo.

CAPTAIN Tereschenko spent his days and nights on the shell pitted railway that fed the advance base. Now and then he managed to snatch a brief hour with his family. On leaving them, he never failed to instruct his wife to leave the day. she saw the trains all going one way. Always she nodded, and inwardly resolved that she would leave without him. One day, the full thunder of the guns swelled into a roar.

THE following little conundrum was given us the other day by a Mr. Hansen whose job it is to manipulate masses of figures. When his brain gets tired doing that, he relaxes by solving crosswords, which we imagine is a better way than taking it out of the wife or the servants. Unfortunately, it had the opposite effect on us. . After fiddling with the thing for an hour, we had a first class row with the person who insisted on volunteering advice over our left shoulder. Truth compels us to admit that we didn't succeed in solving it then, and in the end we were compelled to entreat the solution from' Mr. wi'h us.

Since March 31 last, however, penditure returns from the Treathis Debt has been still further sury, there is a surplus of about increased by the issue of £100 £28 millions. Against this, howmillions of defence bonds, plus an ever, has to be set the fact that in increase in the Floating Debt of the coming year the expenditure about £250 millions. Up to date, to be met out of revenue for the therefore, it appears that since defence forces amounts to £253,-1931 the aggregate liabilities of the State on debt account have increased by about £677 millions. Moreover, the Government has announced its intention of borrowing altogether £400 millions for rearmament purposes £300 millions of which has yet to be raised.

During the debate on the Austrian crisis, the Prime Minister made such references to the need for revision of defence policy and sacrifices from the whole community that it seems likely that the defence programme will be enlarged and the amount to be borrowed increased. Unless there is a very substantial increase in revenue, and special provision is made for debt repayments in the next three years, we must face the prospect of a total increase in the National Debt of well over £1,000 millions sterling by 1941-42, as compared, with 1931.

It is true that a considerable portion of the increase in aggregate indebtedness is in respect of borrowings for the Exchange Equalisation Find, against which it is said there are considerable assets held, including gold.

It must be remembered, however, that those assets were only obtained by the sale abroad of sterling which had been borrowed on the public debt account. Whether those assets will ever realised at their full value will depend upon the time and the circumstances of the demand made for that sterling abroad to be liquidated.

Look next at the taxation post- millions. tion. The receipts for the year Let me emphasise again that ended March 31, 1931, from direct this is in spite of the fact that we and indirect taxation, excluding shall be borrowing at least £90 motor vehicle duties, amounted to millions for armaments, and is £676,268,000. of £1,040 millions for the year. This is an increase over the expenditure for the year ended March 31, 1931, of no less than £265 millions, and even this may prove to be an under-estimate.

Such is the financial position to which we have been brought by the failure of the foreign policy of the National Government in the last six years, with its consistent and continuous drift from the policy of collective security, and the dangerous position which has in consequence arisen, involving huge expenditure on armaments. Nor at the present time does there appear to be any rift in the approaching and overhanging cloud of both increased debt and increased taxation.

EDUCATIONAL FILM FOR MOTORISTS

The Standard-Vacuum Oll Company is sending out invitations for a special showing of its new education film-"The Inside Story of Correct Lubrication," at the King's Theatre, on 22nd April, at 12 noon. The film takes about 45 minutes to run.

"The Inside Story" is a six-recl talking picture which has recently arrived from New York. It has been exhibited with much success in the Philippine Islands and at its premiereat the recent annual meeting of the Philipping Association of Mechanical and Electrical Engineers, members and guests were loud in their praise of the picture. A prominent P. I. engineer remarked at the conclusion of the picture-"It is the best film of ts kind that I have ever seen.". "The Inside Story" is different from the usual run of films produced by commercial firms. It is absolutely

Sir,—Thank you very much for publishing Mr. Stevenson's letter in answer to my article under the above heading. For he has demonstrated, far better than I could ever hope to explain, just that type of English mentality about which I was writing. I am sorry that he has not given me opportunity for any good re-joinder, but unfortunately on all the points that might be productive of constructive argument he has seen fit to argue, not against what I said, but against what he supposes, presumes, or imagines that I said or might say.

And in each case he misses the mark to the straight eye of a true Briton.

He is correct, however, in his presumption that I am an Englishman. But I am afraid it is just when I see such sentiments as his expressed, that I become acutely ashamed of the Presuming that the surplus of £28 fact.

GNAWING PAINS BETWEEN MEALS

Of all the painful forms which stomach trouble takes, is there anything that is more depressing than the gnawing pain that makes its appearance like clockwork between meals?

IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT FEVER

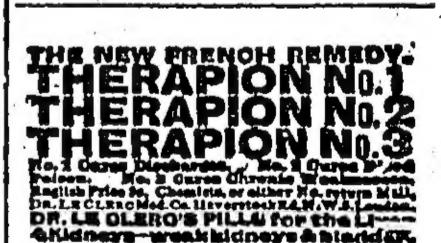

The reason why your stomach reects solld foods when you have fever is because your wasted body tissues are crying out for moisture. This makes you desperately thirsty.

But very often your weakened stomach cannot retain even the ordinary fluid foods. Yet you must have nourishment to rebuild your exhausted body Doctors find that Horlicks can not only be easily digested, but gives your body all the nourishment it needs in its weakened state. Horlicks quickly builds up strength to resist renewed attacks. It is invaluable during illness and convalescence, if taken regularly.

Get Horlicks to-day. In these difficult times of anxioty and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents that listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. M. Hodges, Kayamaily Building, Queon's Road, Hong Kong.

BRITAIN'S PART IN THE FRENCH POLITICAL CRISIS

Credited With Influencing Daladier's Rise

Germany Watches With Close Attention

Berlin, Yesterday.

Germany is following developments in France with the closest attention which for the moment is primarily focussed on those parts of the French Government declaration dealing with military affairs and hinting at a new trend in foreign policy.

The newspapers have refrained for the most part from commenting on the latest French political developments.

An exception is provided by the "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," which credits M. Edouard Daladier, the new French Premier, with having gained a striking initial success.

THREE POWER NAVAL TALKS PROGRESSING

London, Yesterday. The three-power negotiations between Britain, France and the United States which started on Tuesday have, according to "The Times," resulted in certain progress, in as much as the representatives of the three powers have decided, as had long been foreshadowed; to increase the tonnage limit.

"The Times" declares that the situation now is that Britain plans the building of 42,000ton battleships, and that the United States, according to the announcement made carlier, has airendy decided to do so.

France, however, as far as is known, has no intention of going beyond the 35,000-ton limit. -Trans-Ocean.

The Art Of The Dance Throughout the coming of the twenthe coming of the twenThe Nations France, the home of ball

CINCE the coming of the twentieth century, the world has passed through a great upheaval, and the traditions of the 'past' have been shaken to their foundations. In the midst of this struggle for re-birth, a great deal of interest has centred round the arts, particularly dancing. From an international point of view, this is all to the good. Dancing has only one language, understandable by all. Because it must be expressed through the medium of the human body, it is affected much more strongly than any other art by the moral and spiritual outlook of a nation.

During the golden period of fifth-century Greece, the dance reached its highest point of physical and intellectual expression. No nation has ever yet surpassed the Greek ideal of the beauty of the human form. Aware that the actions of the body reflect upon the soul, the Greeks practised only the best types of movement. In all athletics, symmetry of form, restraint, simplicity, and purity of style counted for more than strength. This controlled sense of balance and order has been handed down to posterity as the finest essence of great act.

Indebtedness To Rome

Although the dance owes so much to Greece, it must not beforgotten that it is indebted to Rome for the art of pantomime, which was brought to perfection during the reign of the Emperor Augustus, Every movement rhythmically executed was looked upon by the Romans as a dance the march of warriors, slaves singing at their oars in the galleys, birth, marriage, death—all the crises of life—were depicted with a realism which, in due course, became so beentious that, at the advent of Christianity, dancing was forbidden.

This was a great mistake, for dancing is a quick and subtle reflection of the soul of a nation, and, like a reflection, is the result, not the cause, of the life of its people. Dancing never yet made an age decadent, but a decadent age has always corrupted the dance. Given freedom, therefore, to express what it finds, dancing is a direct indication of a nation's weakness or strength.

Writing On The Wall

The so-called jazz dancing of America is much more suitable to the mentality of the coloured man than the white; yet the average white man of this age prefers it to any other form of dance

It is a curious and little-known fact that the dance of Spain is far nearer to the Greek ideal than any other. The early religious life of the people of Crete formed the root of the Helenic dance. It is interesting to note that the Cretians worshipped the Bull and that they used castanets, while the women were remarkable for their swaying hips and proud carriage. All the poses of Tanagra figures, particularly the curious spiral turn, with back-flung head and arched body, can be paralleled in Spain's most famous dance, Las Sevillanas, Few Anglo-Saxons realise the gulf that divides the dencing of Spain from the rest of Europe, in British countries dancing is an academical art. In Spain it is a natural expression of the life and character of the people.

Dances From Spain

Spain's most famous dances are Jota, Aragonesa, and Las Sevillanas. Jota is an extremely showy dance; its quick, intricate movements, bordering at times on the grotesque, suggest the angular grace of Gothic spires. Sevillanas, full of southern languor and flowing curves, brings to mind the snave outlines of a mosque.

Sevillanas is the epitome of he classic dance of Spain. Its seemingly quiet and subtle movements have in them a provocative allure that works upon the senses like alchemy. The accumulating intricacy of each succeeding copla is so artfully designed that as the dance progresses it seems to rise in one sublime sweep from the lyric to the epic. It has, one feels with a tightening of the throat, a deep spiritual significance; it expresses allegorically life and love and death; it is a blend of the wine and flowers and latent tragedy of Spain, shadowed still by the dark beauty of the invading Arab.

Thanks to the influence of Russian Ballet, the Slavonic dances are much better known than those of Spain—the colour and mystery of Asia, spiced with certain Tartar ciements, lends them a fierce and sombre beauty. The Polonaise is characteristic of a country which unites Oriental splendour with the proud spirit of an independent Western race—until a few years ago it was performed with weapons, which added greatly to its barbaric effect.

The Czechs and Austrians are also great votaries of the dance—experts say that, although the dances of Poland and Russia are the most poetic, those of Bohemia are more numerous and varied.

France, the home of ballet and all things appertaining to beauty and art, might be expected to abound in rich national dances. Such, however, is not the case. The most characteristic folk dances are the Branle and Bourree, neither of which is particularly spectacular, The Gavotte and Minuet were not national but Court dances, and were only used in the ballroom. Nothing of the kind has survived amongst the mass of the people except a certain grace in bowing and, dropping curtsies,

Sailors' Horapipe

There is a certain similarity between Dutch and English dancing. The Dutch, being a race of sailors, have a Matelot dance, not unlike our horapipe, but it must be performed in sabots, and, instead of the arms being crossed on the chest, they are folded be-

In referring to Scottish dancing, a critic once said that it was as sharp and exhibiting as Highland whisky. Spirit in every sense of the word is a most important factor to the Scot! Not everybody knows that the position of the arms in Highland dancing (with the arm raised to the side, never above the head, and the fingers curved above the biceps) is the outcome of a fencing position. The Scots were always great swordsmen.

Irish jigs and reels occupy themselves mostly with the feet. The shades of meaning produced with their musical patter are like a series of subtle epigrams directed to the eye. Irish dancing and Irish wit trip gracefully together.

Although the Chinese show little interest in dancing to-day, the oldest ballet known was held there over thirty centuries ago, and has been described by Confucius. Two special seasons called for the dance in ancient China ---the winter solstice, when heaven was worshipped, and the summer solstice, when the earth was propitiated with sacrificial dances. Dancing masters were highly honoured, and belonged to the second class of mandarins. An old Chinese maxim runs, "One may judge a king by the state of dancing during his reign."

writes Naomi Mitchison with that queer mixture of naivety, subtlety, and self-consciousness which make her one of the most interesting women novelists of our time. In "The Moral Basis of Politics," however, she has deserted fiction, and given us instead a series of reflections upon the moral problems of the middle classes. It is a queer book, full of the doubts and sensibilities and beliefs of a mind which cannot rest content with either art or thought or action, but fumbles tenderly for a faith which will unify all three.

I don't think she has found what she is looking for, but her search, as she describes it, can teach us more than any cast-iron creed. Her very uncertainty, and inconsistency, and even the frequent obscurity of her style, all mirror the plight of many other minds beside her own. Adrift with her, we seem to float across the uneasy sea of English public opinion in the making. For, despite her intense individuality. she is artist enough to universalise her private troubles until they become the troubles of an

Like many other professional people, Naomi Mitchison underwent a conversion to Socialism in 1931; and the growth of Fascism has made her realise even more clearly the relevance of politics. to her life. Political converts are dangerous people, firstly because: they are often dogmatic in their theories, and, secondly, because they hope to find in the political party which they join a religious fellowship and a tense exaltation to match their own fervour. Disillusion follows, and too often they flit from party to party querulously complaining that all politicians are unworthy creatures.

The reason for this is simple. The middle-class convert hopes to find the whole of morality in a single party; he is a Totalitarian in his claims and identifies the party programme with the new dispensation, the party members with its apostles. No wonder the Labour Party seems a bit hum-

"The Moral Basis of Politics" is an attempt to think a way through this disillusionment; to see politics as it is without losing altogether the ideals of conversion. Mrs. Mitchison tries to show that

Socialism can be at the same time the gospel of Christianity and also the policy of a political party; that the Christian can and must "go political" without sacrificing the humanity of this creed,

For this reason her discussion centres first round the problem of "force" (how can anyone who believes in love and kindliness be willing to do violence to his fellow-men?) and, secondly, tound the problems of class and nation (how can anyone who believes in the Kingdom of God feel loyalty to rival mundane groups?). These problems are tackled in a refreshingly unacademic style. Instead of an abstract argument, we are given the personal difficulties and experiences of an intensely honest, worried woman who desperately wants to be good but is not sure how to be. Politicians would do well to read Mrs. Mitchison because she sees politics in a peculiarly English way.

Juvenile Or Straight Make-Up

AIPSIES are a wandering race. Ut and supposed to be of Hindu Origin. They are scattered all over the world and although of the same origin, their incde of dress and customs vary. The Indian Gipsies wear a headdress very much similar to the one shown in the picture, and have large rings, made of brass, to adorn their cars; (Curtain hings have done the trick for me.). Some of them are fair, have. regular features, and fairly large eyes. They believe in scanty, ciothes and live a care-free life.

This sort of Make, Up is called a JUVENILE of STRAIGHT Make-Up, and although simple, requires very careful attention. Juvenile Make-Up is meant for a juvenile lead, who has got to take. every care to look his best. His, Make-Up should be flawless. Some amateurs, when made-up, lock like dolls; remember, you have got to look human, unless you are playing King Kong, Mr. Hyde or the like. Hence extreme care is imperative.

BY VICTOR S. MAMAK

Leac should possess a faultless face. If he is a good actor, his facial faults can be removed by Make-Up just as easily as playing a game of cards. For instance, small eyes can be made to look large and beautiful. A crooked nose can be shown straight and befitting; a very long nose can be subdued; a weak chin will look firm and strong with the help of a few tricks with, the grease paint. It is really! amazing and almost incredible but true what Make-Up can do and the decoer you go into the study of this art, the more interesting it becomes.

For cheeks that are sunken, paint a shade lighter than your juvenile stick; treat hollows and circles under the eyes in the same manner.

Blend in some wet rouge on the cheeks; if the face be broad, keep the brightest spot near the nose; if thin, place most of the colour back in the cheeks, blending forward toward the nose and up over the cheek bones. Run a little rouge under the eyebrows. No one should be able to tell where the rouge fades into your foundation; if this is perceptible you are poorly made-up. On the blend in some foundation grease other hand too much rouge on a man's face is quite as bad; there should be just enough to make the actor look normally healthy. I have been told that Henry Chan, who played for South China in the Tennis League last season, will be turning out this year for Kowloon Tong. His brother Albert, however, who partnered him, will remain with South China, contrary to previous reports.

Miss Marie Smith, Interport and "Y" Ladies' hockey forward, tells me that she hopes to keep fit during the Summer by playing golf.

H. Brokenshire, K.C.C. cricketer, met with a masty accident a short while ago and sustained a fracture of the wrist.

J. T. K. Gilchrist, Hong Kong Hockey Club Junior player, is leaving for Home in the Rawalpindi at the end of this month. He will be away for about nine months.

L. A. Oppenheim, former University and Kowloon Cricket Club tennis player, has returned to the Colony after a prolonged absence.

I was interested last week to meet J. Hunter, former H.K.C.C. stumper, vanishing on a holiday visit to the Colony. Hunter, now resident in Manila, is spending a short vacation in order to escape, temporarily, the trying climate in the Philippines.

C. C. Ma, one of the most prominent athletes at the University, was unfortunate to be unable to take part in 'the, annual athletic meeting. Whilst practising pole vaulting a short while ago, he fell heavily and sustained a fracture of the atm.

Prominent absentees from the University annual athletic meeting this year were the Misses Joyce Anderson and Phyllis Grose, who were the outstanding competitors in the ladies' events last year. I understand that they are under medical advice to refram from participating.

E. H. P. White, one of the original members of the St. Andrew's hockey train which met with such success in the Manuak Hockey Tournament several years ago, is shortly leaving for the United Kingdom via America on six months furlough.

Mrs. M. Vessoona, who at the beginning of the Winter gave every promise of developing into a useful half-back in the St. Andrew's Ladies' Brawn Cup team, has just recovered from an attack of pleurisy.

Local cricketers will be interested to learn that the current issue of Wisden's Cricket Almahack, which is just to hand, reveals that Lt. D. E. Holland-Martin, who played here regularly for the Navy in the 1936-7 season, played in several representative matches at Lord's last Summer. Among other games, he represented Combined Services behind the sticks against the New Zealanders.

The Billiards Handicap competition at the Civil Service Cricket Club has been completed, J. A. Bendall (-80) beating A. W. Grimmitt (-150) in the Final. The Snooker Handicap competition was won by M. N. Rakusen (-45), who beat C. Strange (-45) in the Final.

After being without a bathing pavilion throughout last Summer, the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association's new building at Laichikok beach is nearing completion, and is expected to be ready for use at the end of this month.

The European Y.M.C.A. Swimming Section will hold their annual meeting next Wednesday in the West Lounge, commencing at 5.45 p.m., when the season's prospects and new officials to be elected will form the main items on the agenda. I believe that the "Y" will concentrate mainly on water-polo this season, although one or two galas are likely to be held.

Civil Service Cricket Club are entering two teams in the Lawn Tennis League this season, in the "B" and "D" Divisions.

Norman Lee, last year's most successful swimmer, has already commenced training in preparation for the defence of his several swimming titles. He will be strongly opposed this senson as Wilfred Lawrence, and R. Norman will be among the challengers.

brothers, G.H. and S.A. to represent

Hong Kong against Macao in the Interport hockey series recalls to my mind other instances where brothers have played in the same team in Interports, whether they were in hockey, swimming or football. These are: Tennis (M. K. and M. W. Lo v. Shanghai, 1932). Cricket CE, C, and E. F. Fincher v. Shanghai, 1933). Football (A. V. and B. T. Gosano v. Shanghai, 1930, 1934 and 1935). Swimming (A. A. and E. B. da Roza v. Shanghai and Tientsin, 1934; C. E. and L. Roza-Pereira v. Shanghai and Tientsin in 1931 and 1931). Hockey (G. H. and S. A. Fowler v. Macao, 1938; E. V. and W. A. Reed v. Macao, 1934).

By Judge the Ludge

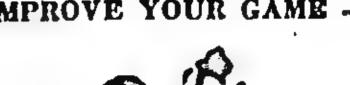

E. B. Tensdale, who is coming out to join the Hong Kong Civil Service next autumn, is a well-known athlete at Home and should figure prominently at local sports meetings.

FR. Lt. Wallace, who is the Colony's right-back for to-day's Interport hockey match against Macao, is the first member of the Royal Air Eoree to secure Interport recognition in any sport in the Colony.

H. G. "Bert" Lange, one of the European Y.M.C.A.'s mainstays in their swimming section, has left the Colony on leave. Travelling to Germany via Canada and America, he is due back in five months.

W. A. Reed, above, will be seen in action for the Colony Interport hockey team against Macau on the Navy ground to-day.

Ganglion Of Disordered Nerves

In the North-West Frontier Province, the brother of the "Red Shirt" leader, Abdul Ghafur, is now Chief Minister. The Movement was at work there also: will it now be transformed into bourgeois constitutionalism? We shall see in due time.

So much, then, for our survey of this vast conspiracy of the Movement against the System. In the ensanguined ganglion of disordered nerves which our orator calls his mind the operating motive is the passion to destroy, and what we are examining is nothing less than a breakdown in or a revolt against civiligation.

It is not superfluous, then, to suggest that vigilance, unity, wisdom, patriotism are needed in its defence. Let us not forget the warning of Lenin: "Nothing is easier than to make the middle classes destroy themselves."

Britain Urging Paris To Support General Policy

Paris, Yesterday. Political opinion in France has reacted strongly to the announcement that the Anglo-Italian agreement will be signed in Rome this evening.

It is generally presumed that the French Government has been kept fully informed about the progress of the Rome negotiations and according to reports appearing in the Paris newspapers one of the first results of the Anglo-Italian agreement as far as France is concerned will be the visit of the New Prime Minister M. Daladier to London.

Early to-day it was hinted that the French Premier would be too greatly occupied with his task of restoring the country's financial and economic affairs to permit of a journey to London.

Later however, it was announ-? ced that the visit had been arranged and that M Daladier PRINCE LIUIS would embark on conversations in On the other hand, there is no AND GRAND London on Wednesday, April 27. Never was your White Horse as good or as old as it is to-day. Years ago, exceptionally heavy stocks of the finest whiskies were laid down to anticipate sales which the quality would justify. These stocks are now fully matured. The result is that WHITE HORSE is now older and better than ever before, excellent as it was . in 1932 and preceding years.

This advance in quality and age will be maintained. White Horse is now the equivalent of a fine liqueur.
